Health Communication

Effective communication is bidirectional between patients and healthcare systems. If either the patient or health care provider lacks clear understanding of the information conveyed, the delivery of care is compromised. The purpose of this review is to analyze the components of effective communication in a healthcare setting, cite current professional standards for each and propose solutions for improvement.

The Importance of Effective Communication in Healthcare ...

Health Communication is key reading for students and researchers who need to understand the factors that contribute to effective communication in health, as well as for health professionals who need to communicate effectively with patients and others. It provides a thorough and up to date, evidence-based overview of this important topic, examining the theoretical and practical aspects of health communication for those whose work involves communication with patients, relatives and other carers.

Good communication is critical to good healthcare. The therapeutic value of effective communication has not always been recognised, but now a substantial body of research demonstrates its value.

Nursing practice is founded upon the concept of compassionate care – of which communication is one element. How skilled and knowledgeable are nurses when it comes to communicating with patients and colleagues?

‘Communication: an essential skill in healthcare’

For the first time, health communication was allocated a chapter in the United States of America (USA)’s Healthy People 2010 objectives, illustrating its growing importance, according to Parrott. In these objectives, set by the United States Department of Health and Human Services, health communication is seen to have relevance for virtually every aspect of health and well-being, including disease prevention, health promotion and quality of life. This increase in the prominence of the ...

WHO | Why health communication is important in public health

Good communication helps patients/clients feel at ease It’s common for people who need health care services to feel anxious about their health, about what tests and treatment they might have to undergo and about what the future holds for them. This can sometimes lead them to speak out of character, perhaps being a bit rude or aggressive.
